Search by description (or part description) to easily find products. For example, find all product names including a reference to 32.

Service items

With features such as standard descriptions that eliminate re-keying, Attaché Products & Services simplifies administration for service businesses. Service items are used where quantities are not held (for example, types of labour, consulting fees, etc.). Tax collection is then automated and sales analysis is available. Additional descriptions can be recorded using comment lines during transaction entry.

Time-saving global price changes

Save time and effort by applying price changes across ranges — by product/service, location, group or supplier. You can choose to increase or decrease prices by an amount or a percentage based on the current cost, last cost, or any of the six selling prices.

Multiple barcodes

Attaché Products & Services lets you associate a virtually unlimited number of barcodes with each product or service. This is extremely useful when a single item has different barcodes if sourced from different suppliers. You can then scan or enter any of the barcodes whenever the software asks for a product or service code. This feature also lets you maintain Global Trade Identification Numbers (GTINs) in addition to your internal product codes.

Alternative products

Alternatives are a must for businesses that deal with large or complex product lines such as spare parts or components. Suggesting alternatives is a great way to turn an enquiry into a sale and take the pressure off the amount of stock you need to carry.

Line	Prod Code	Description	Ordered	B/Order	Price	Discount	GST	Line Total	Print?

DVDR	DVD Player & Recorder

While completing an order you can instantly view alternatives, complete with stock levels, prices and comments. You can then choose to use an alternative if, for example, stock levels are low or the customer prefers one of the suggested alternatives.

With Attaché Products & Services you can associate a virtually unlimited number of alternatives with each product or service.

Superseded and inactive products

Similar to the Alternatives function, you can set up replacements for superseded products. When the stock of a superseded product is insufficient to fill an order, the replacement product is used instead. You can also make a product inactive to prevent it from being bought or sold but retain historical data for sales analysis.

Purchase conversions

With Attaché Products & Services you can purchase in one quantity but hold stock in another. For example, you can purchase in dozens but sell in units.

Automated re-ordering

The automated re-ordering feature is both a great time-saver and insurance against running out of essential products. Simply define your minimum and maximum re-order quantities for a given product and your system will automatically create requisitions. Once approved, purchase orders can then be raised without further manual input. (Requires the Purchasing option.)

Bin locations

The ability to allocate the bin location of products enables more accurate stocktakes and faster picking of goods for orders. For example, picking slips created in Order Entry/Invoicing can be printed in bin location order based on customer, order, delivery date, and run number.

Multiple stocktakes

Monitor your stock more accurately and with less disruption by carrying out smaller stocktakes more often. Attaché Products & Services lets you run dozens of simultaneous stocktakes (for example, on a range of bin locations, by product group, etc.), using Palm™ devices, if you wish, to scan barcodes and enter quantities. You can even continue billing whilst stocktake results are entered.

Extensive reporting

A wide range of reports is available in Attaché Products & Services plus you can produce customised reports via the Attaché ODBC option. Reports can be printed, displayed on screen, or output as a file.

Additional features

- Attaché's menu access feature lets you prevent operators from seeing confidential information, such as purchase prices
- various product labels can be produced
- consignment stock
- three alternative supplier codes and virtually unlimited barcodes for each product
- choose between average, fixed or last product costing
- Add Order Entry Invoicing for simple kitting or PowerLink Manufacturing for sub-assemblies and more.

"We print consolidated picking slips for each delivery run, and use the bin location to show where in the freezer, chiller or pallet rack each product is stored so our staff only need to go past once to pick all the goods. I love our system."

Multi-location Stock option

The Multi-location Stock option provides the ability to view and control stock at an unlimited number of locations — multiple warehouses, branches, departments and sales representative vehicles, as well as consignment stock. There is no need to maintain separate companies for different stock locations.

Records for each location are maintained as transactions are entered for purchases and sales. Transfers can be made between locations, and product details can be copied from one location to another while individual product costs can be held for each location.

Total pricing flexibility

Attaché Products & Services provides various pricing options with six standard selling prices and three discount levels. However, for virtually unlimited pricing flexibility the Customer Special Pricing option enables you to create special prices and discounts for customers and products to automate:

- special contracted or negotiated prices
- date-based specials (for example, for catalogues)
- quantity breaks
- special offers on specific product groups, and much more

Notes option

Use the handy Notes option to record comments about each product or service. For example, include additional details on alternative products, competitive advantages, supplier comments, and product specifications. Notes are especially useful for handling phone enquiries or if you have casual staff who aren't familiar with all your products and services.
